Commissioner of Public Works Gardner is doing an extensive and thoroughly appreciated piece of work at the corner of Granite and Union streets. A bad drainage condition has existed there for many years and of late has become a serious menace. The old broken down system has been taken out altogether and a modern one with two catch basins put in its place. A grateful pedestrian and motorist public is busily expressing its appreciation.

Mayor Frank R. Cowan, has just been nominated for a fourth term in Brewer, defeating his opponent, Alderman Gilmore by a vote of 329 to 278. The nomination is equivalent to election, as there is no opposing candidate. Mayor Cowan is a brother-in-law of H. G. Cole of The Courier-Gazette staff and is a frequent visitor in this city. He has made a fine record at the head of Brewer's municipal affairs, and the voters' approval is seen in the fact that he gets a fourth nomination.

ISLESBORO CABLE

Will Be Laid Soon By the Rockland Lighter Sophia.

A cable connecting Islesboro with the electric power stations of the Central Maine Power Company on the mainland will be laid under the waters of Penobscot Bay within the next few days in order to provide electricity for the island communities, according to F. W. Eaton, operating engineer of the company.

All arrangements have been completed to lay this cable by the lighter Sophia, as soon as it arrives from the Worcester factory of the American Steel & Wire Company.

The cable is being laid in answer to an appeal from residents of Islesboro for electric service. After a survey had convinced the Central Maine that the feat could be accomplished in spite of technical obstacles, an agreement was concluded by which the company promised to give the service as soon as possible. It is now anticipated that the line will function on or before January 1.

The cable will connect with Central Maine distribution lines from Castine and the submarine section will run from Coombs' Point to Dice Head.

In order to provide efficient service, the cable will carry 11,000 volts in a Y connected line, changing from a delta connected 6,600 volt line on the mainland.

The Central Maine has had a large construction crew at work since August building the distribution lines and this work has been completed down to Dark Harbor. At the same time, another crew has been wiring up the homes on the island to receive the electricity.

Several unique achievements in engineering have been made by the company in the hope of improving the results obtained by older methods of running submarine cables. The cable, for example, is specially designed and constructed of the non-leaded type.

The new cable weighs nearly seven pounds a foot in the sea section and nearly ten pounds in the two land sections for the ends. Each conductor is of seven wire strands, insulated with rubber and tape. Four of these compose the cable and they are packed with jute and armored with wire.

Landing the cable at Dice Head brought up another problem for the shore is a precipitous cliff. To neutralize this, a special casting, similar to a ball and socket arrangement, was designed to go over the cable and protect it. For further protection, a lightning arrester of new design has been installed. The sea cable is more than two and a quarter miles in length.

THE ATTACK ON MR. GOULD

Duty of Maine Republicans To Resent It Through Their Votes In Next Monday's Election.

[Portland Press Herald Editorial]

The Republicans of Maine will be required to answer this question on November 29: "Shall this State send to the United States Senate, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Bert M. Fernald, a Democrat or a Republican?"

If Maine elects the Democratic candidate for United States Senator in this special election it will mean that when the organization of the Senate occurs it will be controlled by the Democrats. If the Democrats control the organization of the Senate it will mean that every one of the Senate committees will have a Democratic chairman; that these committees will be so constituted as to nullify every effort the Republicans may make to carry out the policies of President Coolidge; that there will be two years of turmoil in Congress, with a political deadlock so that nothing can be accomplished and in consequence business throughout the country, rendered uncertain and uneasy, will languish and hesitate and the general effect will be detrimental to the country's best interests.

The campaign which has been going on, and which will culminate next Monday in the special election, has taken a course which indicates how important the Democratic party regards the election of a United States Senator in Maine. For the first time in many years the most desperate expedients have been resorted to in order to confuse the real issue. There have been personal attacks made upon the Republican candidate, Arthur R. Gould, who was nominated in the recent primary. The Democratic candidate has gone back over the business career of Mr. Gould to bring forward every transaction in which he has been in any way connected in an endeavor to make it appear that he is not fitted to fill the important office which he seeks.

The Republican candidate who won his nomination in the primary against great odds and who, by every consideration of fair play and "good sportsmanship," is entitled to the support of every Republican who voted in the primary, is also being attacked by an element of his party whose candidate failed to poll a sufficient number of votes in the primary to win the nomination. In the closing days of the campaign this disgruntled minority of the Republican party comes forward to file charges against Mr. Gould alleging illegal expenditures in the conduct of his primary campaign. The fact that filing of these charges was delayed until the eleventh hour indicates their motive. The time allowed for properly investigating such charges is not sufficient to determine whether they are warranted or not. Justice cannot be done either the persons filing the charges or the person accused. But the main object of those who are responsible for making these charges at the eleventh hour will have been accomplished in any event. Great injury has been done the Republican candidate by the filing of these charges and his opponent in this campaign has been given encouragement and aid.

Viewed from the standpoint of political ethics which decrees that those who suffer defeat in a primary should abide by the decision which the majority of the party makes, unless there is conclusive and overwhelming evidence of fraud and corruption (which is lacking in this case) the attempt of the disgruntled minority can only be regarded as unfair and bearing the stigma of political trickery.

But none of these things have changed the issue, which is whether or not the Republicans of Maine propose to send to the United States Senate a Republican or a Democrat. There were many thousands of Republicans who were not supporters of Arthur R. Gould in the primary and whose favorite candidate did not win. Their obligation is now to the party and not to the individual. Their duty is to go to the polls on November 29 and cast their ballot for the Republican nominee if they sincerely desire to give support to a Republican President and aid their party in Congress in carrying out his policies.

There can be no dodging of this issue. No loyal Republican will dodge it. The question is greater than the political ambitions of any individual or the desire of any faction within the Republican party to either rule or ruin it.

For Mr. Gould it can truthfully be said that he is the choice of the Republicans of the eastern section of this State who desired a representative in the United States Senate from their part of the State. In the past these Republicans of Eastern Maine have stood loyally by the nominations their party has made, whether they favored such candidates or not. They have always put party loyalty above sectional pride. Republicans, living in other parts of the State, must now abide by the decision of the primary and accord to Mr. Gould their support if they want to be considered fair and loyal.

The Republican candidate is a man of forceful character, of wide experience and of unimpeachable business integrity. He has been a leader in doing constructive work. He has helped to develop the State and by his endeavors has given employment to thousands of men and added greatly to the prosperity of Maine. In his own county of

THE ATTACKS ARE REACTING

Candidate Gould Gaining Strength Everywhere As Result of Recent Sensational Charges.

The sensational attack upon Arthur R. Gould, Republican candidate for United States Senator, are having the result that most campaign propaganda does. Republicans who have not been particularly interested in the special election, are now indicating their purpose, not only to vote for Mr. Gould, but to work for him, as the result of what they believe to be unwarranted attacks upon a man who has done so much for the industrial and social welfare of the State.

Democrats by the scores have openly announced their intention of supporting Mr. Gould. "I have never voted anything but the Democratic ticket in my life," said a well known Rockland citizen Tuesday. "But I shall mark my cross over the name of Arthur R. Gould next Monday."

That this will be the result elsewhere of the muckraking by Redman et al is indicated by the following article which appeared in Tuesday night's Lewiston Journal:

A big Gould vote is expected to tally next Monday—larger than had been thought for prior to last Saturday,—as a consequence of the Klan attack made upon him. This attack alone would have tended to strengthen his position very much in this section, but when was added to it an apparent alliance of Fulton B. Redman, Democratic opponent of Mr. Gould, with the Klan it started a switch from the Democratic forces to the Republican candidate.

One man, who previous to Saturday, had been sitting passive, announced Monday that he was going to get into the campaign.

"I had not intended to stir myself very much," said he. "I felt that the Republican candidate was sure to win, so why should I get actively into the campaign. I don't see anything to change my mind as to the outcome of the election, but I do see something to alter it as to my activity. I feel that this is a time when we should give a rebuke to such attacks and the motives behind them. I want to see Mr. Gould elected by a majority so sweeping that the Klan will fade entirely from the political picture in Maine.

"From now until next Monday I'm a Gould worker. I think I can do him some good. I won't make any predictions as to how many votes I will bring to him beyond saying that it will be a substantial number; a number worth having.

"The motives which prompt this attack, in my opinion, are not a desire for pure politics, honest elections, but just a fanatic attack on a man. If I felt that Mr. Gould had been dishonest, had intentionally and corruptly violated the laws, I would want to see him punished. I don't believe he did, any more than I believe his opponent Mr. Redman, who had no contest did. I don't believe that either Mr. Buzzell, who, so we are told was the Klan candidate or Mr. Jack or Mr. Baxter knowingly did so."

Aroostook Is Mad

A despatch from Houlton to the Press Herald says:

"Aroostook folk, fighting mad, over the charges which have been made against Arthur R. Gould of Presque Isle, Republican candidate for United States Senator at the special election Nov. 29, are planning to roll up a tremendous majority for him at the polls.

"Prediction that Mr. Gould's home county would give him a margin of more than 10,000 over his Democratic opponent, Fulton J. Redman of Ellsworth, was made by Albert K. Stetson, member of the state committee, and Mr. Stetson, who a few weeks ago told the other members of the committee that Redman's vote in the county would not exceed 500, declared that he thought it would be less than that in view of the latest developments in the campaign.

"We know him up here," he said in speaking of the charges against Mr. Gould, "and the people here are indignant over these allegations."

THE LANDING OF THE PILGRIMS

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the rocking pinas of the sea
Their giant branches tossed.

And the heavy night hung dark
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles moored their bark
On the wild New England shore.

Not as the conqueror comes,
They, the true-hearted, came;
Not with the roll of the stirring drums,
And the trumpet that sings of fame;

Not as the flying come,
In silence and in fear,
They shook the depths of the desert's gloom
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

Amidst the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea;
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free!

The ocean-eagle soared
From his nest by the white wave's foam;
And the rocking pinas of the forest roared
This was their welcome home!

There were men with hoary hair
Amidst that pilgrim-band;
Who had they come to winter there,
Away from their childhood's land?

There was woman's fearless eye,
Lit by her deep love's truth;
There was manhood's brow, serenely high,
And the fiery heart of youth.

What sought they thus afar?
Bright jewels of the mine?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
They sought a faith's pure shrine!

Aye, call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod;
They have left unstained what there they found—
Freedom to worship God!

TURNING TO GOULD

The effect of the Democratic form of campaigning has been immediate and arousing, but scarcely in the direction that its instigators had looked for. From every section of the State where a few days ago the interest was moderate in tone there comes news of an awakening of the Republican forces such as a special election rarely has elicited. Resenting what they regard as wantonly unjust attacks upon the integrity of Mr. Gould, the voters of the party are declaring their purpose to make certain his election by an overwhelming vote. In particular we perceive—we were expecting it—the mighty stirring among the people of Aroostook, who with a natural resentment of these attacks upon one of their honored citizens are marshalling their numbers for a demonstration at next Monday's voting booths such as no one section of the State ever before has registered. Our informants tell us that so deep is the feeling engendered in those northern regions as that party lines will be practically eliminated and Aroostook will come down to the southern counties with a vote for Gould so unanimous that it will surpass anything of the sort Maine has ever known.

Well, we too will not be idle here in Knox County.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day is with us—we had been on the point of saying, in due form, but in the multitudinous changes that in the process of time have been wrought into the fabric of the anniversary one might naturally, query what its due form consisted of. There are many this week taking part in the day who can recall a rigorous observance of it which apparently had but little changed since the period of its installation by the Pilgrim Fathers; but these later times of progress, as they are lightly denominated, have laid such an impress upon the day as that any member of the Pilgrim band who should today casually drop in upon us might find it difficult to recognize even the rudiments of the features of it. That elder day, divided into the austere morning period of religious worship and a succeeding period of comfortable feasting, has passed out, the churchy part of it relegated to the "night before," or in most communities frankly omitted altogether, while the succeeding season of relaxation in respect of its details has been highly revolutionized. The old custom of the family gathering about the gloriously laden dining table continues to be regarded, and yet such is the encroachment made upon it by the hotel and restaurant dinner that one may find it possible to fear that—what with the growing cost of the table and the problems of domestic help—the day is not far distant when the family dinner also will come to lose its royal and distinguishing character. But the old, old fashion of being thankful needs no modifying. Let us not let go our hold on that.

Noting the death in Wisconsin of what the writers describe as the largest constable in the United States—let us with proper reserve designate him as constable at large—figures of seven feet six inches in height are quoted in connection with three hundred pounds in weight. Those are unusual dimensions. In our boyhood we used to hear of a man up Appleton way who tipped the scales at above 300 pounds, and who lived—so the story ran—exclusively upon bread and milk. Can any of our present-day readers tell us if this was fact or exaggeration—and the name of the man whose achievement in the realm of avoirdupois it was the ambition of many a Rockland boy, industriously applying himself to his evening bowl of bread and milk, to emulate.

When Queen Marie was crossing the Tarrytown ferry Sunday she smiled graciously upon an artist who for her delectation performed upon an accordion. ### THOSE JEWETT PRIZES

So many contestants entered the Jewett slogan contest that the author of the winning suggestion won't receive his $10,000 prize in time for his Christmas shopping (since everybody does his shopping early), but will have the cash just in time to make Christmas Day itself extraordinarily merry. Says an announcement from the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company. At the same time, the winners of second and third prizes will receive nice new Jewett four-door sedans to add to their Christmas cheer.

The judges of the contest face a tremendous task. To pick three winners, they have to eliminate 402,733 suggestions and since every ballot is to be read and considered, even the most eager contestant will grant the judges until near Christmas time to reach their decision. Winners will be notified promptly of their good fortune, while other competitors must await the general announcement to be made in the company's advertising.

Some competitors, however, are not so patient. The contest ended officially at midnight, October 31. At 9:30 next morning, the contest department had a long distant telephone call. "Who wins the prize?" was the anxious query. And that day's mail brought 62,587 ballots in bulk shipments from Paige-Jewett dealers all over the country. In all, 2,000,000 ballots were distributed to dealers and directly to 40,000 persons who wrote to the factory for them. The 402,000 that were sent back came from all quarters of the world. No less than 35 foreign countries are represented. Far competitors, however, couldn't use the mails. Twenty-five persons sent their slogans by cable—one of them all the way from India, which is costly cabling—while a steamship captain sent his from mid-ocean by wireless.

Remarkable ingenuity and skill were shown by many contestants in preparing their ballots. One suggestion was received in the form of a hand-wrought hand-decorated booklet, elaborate in conception and in the making. Another was in the form of a printed volume, with handsome typographical layout and illustrations. Art work to the cost of at least $500 marked another entry. Others came in embossed leather, beaded designs, photographs and even wax floral designs. But as these could not be properly filed their slogans were copied on regular ballots, and assumed the same standing as the ordinary forms.

At least half a dozen suggested names were duplicated more than 1000 times, the contest file reveals. On the whole, however, the ballots reveal much original thought, for the more obvious suggestions received represent but a small part of the great total.

Current events were reflected in the suggestions. The heavyweight championship, the world series, the channel swim, the visit of Queen Marie, brought in Tunneys, Cardinals, Trudys, and Queens, by the score.

That slogans are read and remembered was proved in an interesting way by the contest itself. Scores of contestants submitted slogans or names identical with those already in use by other car manufacturers, as well as by makers of typewriters, shirts, soaps, perfume and most other commodities.

Hero worship was revealed in many a ballot. If their authors had their way, the new Jewett would be christened Roosevelt, Coolidge, Woodrow Wilson, or W. J. Bryan. It is expected that the judges will decide that these great Americans are secure in the hearts of their countrymen and need not be immortalized in the name of an automobile.

DAYLIGHT SAVING VALID

Opponents of System In Massachusetts Turned Down By Supreme Court.

The appeal questioning the validity of the Massachusetts daylight saving law was turned down Tuesday by the Supreme Court.

The lower courts were sustained in refusing to enjoin enforcement of the law. Justice McKeen, in a separate opinion, held that the case should not even have been considered but should have been dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

The Massachusetts State Grange the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and others, had challenged the law as an invalid exercise of authority which rested exclusively in the Federal Government. They asserted that the statute caused a loss of $20,000,000 annually to agriculture through depreciation of farm lands, and $8,000,000 through the loss of crops.

Movies

PARK THEATRE

The attraction at the Park on Thanksgiving Day is "Stella Dallas" featuring Ronald Coleman, Belle Bennett, Alice Joyce, Jean Hersholt and others.

Dramatic points and counter points, peaked with emotion, fill every reel of "Stella Dallas." In it are youth, beauty, romance and a deep underlying pathos which endows the film with a fullness of spirit and richness of unusual situations that alternately streak the cheeks with tears and wreath the face with smiles.

The double header for Friday and Saturday is Elinor Glyn's story "Love's Blindness" featuring Pauline Stark and Antonio Moreno. The other feature is "Gigolo" featuring Rod La Rocque. Elinor Glyn's story is set in a background of English aristocracy. The settings are authentic and elaborate, among them being some of the most beautiful interiors ever seen on the screen. Miss Stark wears many clothes and wears them well, and there are some glimpses of English society functions and diversions that are highly interesting. "Gigolo" is a screen version of Edna Ferber's celebrated story of the same name. Featured in the supporting cast are Jobyna Ralston, and Louise Dresser. Cyril Chadwick, George Nichols and Sally Rand also are in the cast.—adv.

STRAND THEATRE

Today's big feature is "The Blue Eagle," one of the season's most spectacular film successes.

One of the comedy thrills in "The Freshman" commencing Friday and Saturday, at Strand Theatre, is the last few minutes of play in a football game in which Harold Lloyd makes a ninety-five yard dash dash said to be the only one of its kind in gridiron history. The Freshman is Harold, only son of Ma and Pa Lamb, and due to be shorn for a goat. Instead of academic honors, he goes to college seeking to shine as a prince.

TO "THE COUNT"

[For The Courier-Gazette]
 By a slab-covered cottage
 In Maine by the sea,
 I wandered today,
 And my thoughts were of thee.

The blue ocean ran high
 Over the shell-covered ledge,
 And the wild gulls' cry
 Came up from the ledge.

A white yacht at anchor
 Stood out in the bay;
 The water reflected
 Her hulk where she lay.

Across on the island
 Sheep grazed on the hill,
 And the smoky warden's shire
 Rang out loud and shrill.

I am back from my walk,
 I am back to life's task,
 You are gone from here now
 But I see you there still.

NATIONAL GRANGE

More Observations By a Rockland Man Who Attended Sessions.

(Second Installment)

What do you know about the farmers demanding an increase in the tariff? The delegates have done so, and specified what they wanted. I guess the politicians don't know what the farmers do want.

The advocates of holding the 1927 convention in Washington, D. C., talked very long and earnestly, and even brought a man from the National Capital, who gave a long and rather tedious address on the beauties of the city, but the master of the Ohio State Grange, who talked about one-sixth as long, put them all out of the running in a speech so pithy, witty and sensible that his hearers wished that there was more of it. The delegates on the second ballot selected Ohio, the location to depend on which city offers the best accommodations to the Grange, probably Cleveland.

The greatest surprise of all was when the Shipping Board Commissioner from South Dakota delivered his address. He said that the United States must have a merchant marine, supplemented by a strong United States Navy. Shades of Charles E. Littlefield! This was from the prairie. The commissioner explained that every time there was trouble abroad, as during the Boer war, the World War, and the English coal strike, the owners of foreign-owned vessels went after the rates most profitable at the time, regardless of American interests. For the past few months, coal had been a more profitable cargo than grain and foreign owned vessels had abandoned grain carrying, and although the U. S. Shipping Board was making every exertion to ship grain, they could not by reason of this year's scanty appropriation, equip ships fast enough. The master of the New York State Grange stated that there were miles of vessels hauled upon the Hudson river and asked if they were not adapted for grain carrying.

In reply to a question as to why they were not used, the commissioner replied that they were hampered by funds; that the amount allowed the Board in 1925 was $50,000,000, in 1924 $36,000,000, in 1925 $24,000,000, and in 1926 $13,900,000, so that with so small an appropriation, although all elevators at shipping points were congested with grain for which there was a market waiting abroad, and although the Board was using every vessel it had in the grain carrying trade, the congestion continued. The Commissioner further said that he had been everywhere, and there was now no opposition to a ship subsidy or its equivalent coming from the Northwest. This was news indeed. Frye and Littlefield warned them of this 25 years ago, and they either didn't believe it, or if they did, they didn't want any money to go to the East. Misfortune makes men brothers, as does mutual interest and mutual hardship, as witness the affection with which old soldiers regard each other. Hardships for the farmer is country wide and all sections feel it. Maybe that was why South East and West got along so smoothly and agreeably.

We all went to the Methodist Church Sunday. It was a perfectly good day to go on an auto trip, but the minister had judiciously added to the attractions of his sermon the able National Master and two clergymen who were also members of State Granges. With three ministers and the additional attraction of an able layman there was no opportunity to slide in any of the applicants for relief funds for total strangers. That the 2000 grangers present appreciated this was evident from the heavy plates and joyous expression of those who passed them.

In general the splendid effectiveness of this talented body of men was in striking and painful contrast to that of the bustling procrastinators in Washington, D. C. In 10 days they agree on what was needed, settled all differences, decided on what should be done and the way to do it. They had committee meetings at which they did actual work. They said what they had to say and then stopped talking. They did this with time to spare to shop, and run about to see the Legion and the fruit shows, to take little auto trips one trip as guests at Poland Spring and to generally enjoy themselves.

Agents of various interests anxious to help the farmer were very active but didn't make a dent in that hard headed delegation. Even the plea of the New Jersey master to favor a firm in his State on the Muscle Shoals matter got the cold shoulder. If they have learned a lesson let us hope that it will last!

I was glad the South was no better represented. Do you remember the slogan "Buy a bale of cotton" and "The old flag, and, an appropriation?" They have raised too much cotton this year, just as they did of tobacco several years back, and are planning to go into some other line of farming. Northern farmers know what that means, but the Southern delegates who did appear could not be guided by the general hard common sense of the majority. Jesse A. Tolman.

SNOWY OWL INVASION

Birds Driven From Northern Homes By Famine Reach Maine Coast

Hundreds of large snowy owls have invaded the light station of Half Way Rock, part of an extensive migration of these birds from their homes from north, from which they have been driven by sparsity of their principal food, the rabbit. They have been seen in large numbers off Orr's Island and Bailey Island. Such a visit is beyond the memory of the oldest fishermen.

Dr. Alfred O. Gross, Bowdoin College ornithologist, says that the migration of owls was predicted last summer by scientists when it was found that the rabbits of the north were being killed by disease. Dr. Gross has reports from various parts of New England which tend to show that the migration is general. The snowy owl breeds in the very far north, in the Hudson Bay region and within the Arctic Circle. He declares that the influx of owls, together with goshawks, which also have been driven south by lack of food, constitutes a problem as they may be a menace for chickens. The rabbits are being killed by a disease common to them and to the partridge. It is passed between them by means of a tick, which also is dangerous to human beings.

Plans were completed for the cutting of the big pipe line to Thomaston and the installing of the N. E. Portland Cement and Lime Co. branch yesterday and the job completed in less than two hours after the gates were closed. Supt. MacAlary had laid every plan possible to shorten the time of suspension of service to Thomaston patrons. When the water pressure dropped cutters, and all tools were in place and work began instantly in the orderly process of cutting out the necessary length, setting in the new piece with shut off and joints already completed, then the setting of the sleeves and the running of the joints. Everything ran according to schedule and the big job was done. Supt. MacAlary expressed himself as well pleased with the spirit of the big crew working under Frank Knowlton. He also expressed his appreciation of the courtesies extended by the street railway. The junction point came exactly under their tracks and the company co-operated by pulling out its ties and carrying the rails on blocks held up by three steel rods, thus allowing the water men to work unhampered.

Both promoters are seeking Oliver Hamlin as one of the principals in a sparring exhibition soon to be held in that city. The Rockland boy is training steadily and is as hard as nails, his chief handicap being that he can find no sparring partner who likes to flirt with the undertaker.

Frank Power strolled Tillson avenue Monday night with a pint of alcohol on his hip. The booze was scented from afar by Officers Drinkwater and Ripley, and a seizure followed. Power, in Municipal Court Tuesday, was fined $500 and costs and sentenced to six months in jail. He was committed, and his stay there will be an even year if the fine is not paid.

Capt. Frank E. Averill displayed some old-timer newspapers at The Courier-Gazette office Tuesday, among them Brother Jonathan, dated July 4, 1846; Naval & Military Path-Finder, dated April 29, 1861; and Rockland Gazette, dated April 15, 1863. The last named contained an account of the death and funeral of Major Gen. Hiram G. Berry, who was killed at Chancellorsville.

A smashing good game of football is promised for Thanksgiving afternoon at Community Field, between two unbeaten teams, the Battery G. Warriors and Rockland All-Stars. A record crowd is assured, as there is no other local event of importance on the docket. The Warriors' line-up includes such well known players as Chase, Day, MacAlman, Johnson, Huntley and Kent. The All-Stars' stellar aggregation embraces Dick Reed, Oliver Hamlin, Oney, Pellicane, Frye and others. The proceeds of the game will be used to equip the soldier lads with basketball uniforms.

Ruth Mayhew Tent passed inspection, flying colors and received much praise for the way the members had carried the work along. Department Inspector Mrs. Bertha Noyes of Norway, was somewhat surprised that there were no more daughters and granddaughters of Civil War veterans who were identified with the work and remarked that she had expected to see members enrolled from Camden, Thomaston and Vinalhaven as this Tent is the only one in the county. The Daughters in this Tent, however, are very proud of their heritage and propose to carry on. To raise money for expenses for the coming year they are to have a sale Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 7 of fancy work, aprons and a food table. There will also be a "grab" for the children. In the evening of that date they will give another of their popular auction parties. All eligible to join the Tent are cordially invited to do so.

NATIONAL MOTOR SAFETY
Forty-Two States Cooperating With A. A. A. In Great Program.

"There are 42 state legislatures meeting this winter. For the first time in the history of the automobile there is an opportunity to put over an almost universal safety program. The entire program is important and worth while. Its enactment is a challenge to our State associations, individual clubs and every other motoring agency."

This is the message just broadcast to the 42 state clubs of the American Automobile Association by National Headquarters officials here in Washington. It comes as a sort of climatic broadside in the ceaseless effort of adoption by the 48 states of the model traffic code drafted by the Second National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, sponsored by Herbert Hoover, Secretary of the United States Department of Commerce.

"Many of the recommendations of the model code already are a part of the laws of numerous states," the message continues. "Others are yet to be incorporated and, in some few states, the entire code will be adopted to supplant the one prevailing at present. The code recommended by the Hoover Conference has the tremendous prestige of being the best thought of the Nation's leading thinkers in the field of safety. It has been the experience of those who have been working in the interest of its adoption that State officials, executive and legislative, recognize this fact. As a result, they show a keenly sympathetic interest that bodes well for its widespread adoption."

Pointing out that one of the big tasks devolving on local and state motor club officials apparently lies in getting the model code before legislators and citizens generally, officials of the national motoring body urge that every club place as a leading plank in its 1927 platform the carrying into effect of the recommendations of the conference, and pledge their vigorous backing of the model code and persistent support of it until the legislation is passed.

Marshalling of the greatest thought in the country on the subject of safety was an extraordinary achievement but that important work will have been wasted, however, unless all local and state agencies upon whom the next step has devolved push their side of the program relentlessly, it is argued.

Supervisor of thrift is a new position created this year in the schools of New York City by the board of education. The position carries a salary of $4000 a year. Duties of the supervisor will be to stimulate thrift activities in the schools and co-ordinate the work of savings banks with the public schools.

NEAR EAST POSTERS
Here's a Chance For Artistic Students To Win Cash Prizes.

Announcement is made through the State office of the Near East Relief of a poster contest open to pupils in the art department of the high schools and junior high schools throughout the State.

The contest is of nationwide character, but a State prize will also be awarded for the best poster produced by a contestant in that state. These state prizes are of $25 each, and one will be awarded in each state in the Union. In addition there are three national prizes of $75, $25 and $15 each. Only winners of state prizes are eligible to receive these national prizes. All prizes are donated by Hon. Henry Morgenthau. The conditions of the Maine contest are these:

The completed posters must be received at State headquarters of the Near East Relief, 89 Exchange street, Portland, before March 15, 1927. Each competitor will be allowed to enter but one poster.

The motif for the poster may embrace any appropriate idea except the starvation idea, which has been much used in the past. It is suggested that pupils remember what the schools of America mean to them; knowledge, training for life work, formation of character, and then try to make the poster show how the American boy and girl can pass on these same benefits to the boys and girls of the Near East.

Posters should be upright on illustrators' board 20 inches by 26 inches or on paper mounted. Avoid too many colors. Near East Relief should appear on the poster. It should bear on the reverse side this statement and signed by the maker: "The design and execution of this poster is my own work." The name of the pupil and the school and town from which he comes should be appended. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of advertising value and artistic merit. All posters will become the property of the Near East Relief.

Five voters had registered for the special election up to noon Wednesday. The list follows: Arthur J. Bates, James P. Grindell, Ernest Ogden Kenyon, Carl Oscar Nelson and Merton P. Warren.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Reports Tell of Gratifying Work Done In Spite of Shortened Finances.

There are few institutions in the city from which the general public benefits more than the Public Library, consequently many readers will be interested in what the annual reports have to say about it.

First comes the report of the trustees—William T. Cobb, William O. Fuller, James A. Flynn, Mrs. Aldana Spear, Raphael S. Sherman, Jarvis C. Perry, J. A. Jameson and William D. Talbot. This says:

The Rockland Public Library stands very high among the libraries of the State, and too much cannot be written concerning the excellent work of Miss Snow and her capable and loyal staff of assistants. The figures in connection with the number of people using the library and the number of books circulated indicate to some extent the service our library is rendering our people.

If possible the library should have more money for the purchase of books, so that the library may be kept alive and up-to-date. The library now has available approximately two-thirds as much money as it ought to have for a community of this size. The trustees recommend that this be increased to one hundred per cent as soon as possible.

The building is in very good condition, but before long the interior should be redecorated at a probable cost of $1,000. It is recommended that a new room be added in the children's room—it would probably prove economical to do this. The other sections of floor should be refinished. A vertical file and a book truck are much needed—cost about $100 for the two pieces of equipment. Work should be done on the lawn next spring to put that in good condition. If the lawn were kept in good condition the cost of keeping it mowed and trimmed would undoubtedly be lessened.

There have been several gifts of books during the year, and special mention is made of gifts of $50 for children's room from Mrs. Henry Reuter and Mrs. William Heyburn. (This is the third year of these gifts).

An extremely conscientious librarian, Miss Kathleen Snow, and who exhibits a vital interest in the institution's welfare, as will be seen from the following report:

It has been five years now since our adoption of the new rulings establishing a separate department for the children, with its children's librarian; permitting the public to have free access to the book stacks at all times; opening the library for 12 hours each day and employing a larger staff.

Our record for these five years has been one of material expansion and growth and has been marked by the introduction of many new phases of library service, each bringing closer co-operation between the library and its public. This year for the first time we have been able to give our whole attention to further emphasizing these various phases of our service, and though the year is unmarked by the introduction of new types of service, never before have we been able to record such a gratifying increase in the public's use and appreciation of the library.

Although statistics at best appear uninteresting I call your attention to the following facts revealed by this year's records; more people have visited the library than ever before (nearly 3500 more than did during last year); more books have been loaned for home use, (11,452 more than in 1925 and an increase of 16,900 over the number loaned five years ago); 112 more people have registered as library users than did in the same period last year. Especially noticeable is the increased demand for children's books, 25 per cent more books being loaned for home use than were loaned in 1925, and 90 per cent (7500) more than in 1921.

We note a growing demand for reference material and statistical information, though this continues to be the least used department of the library. Although 78 per cent of the books loaned for home use are fiction we record an increasing call for books of practical instruction and study. The library is in close co-operation with other libraries in the State, especially the State Library at Augusta, and from these constantly borrow books to supplement its own collection.

The increasing use of the library by non-residents is developing a new side to our library service. Especially true is this of the summer months, once the quietest period of the year but now recording a circulation nearly equal to that recorded in October, (one of the busiest library months) and larger by 53 than the largest monthly circulation in 1921.

All of these facts emphasize the extent in which the library has become a vital factor in the educational life of the community, and its success in reaching citizens who hitherto have been uninterested in its existence. This progress may be traced directly to your forward looking plans of five years ago and the library's policy of keeping its books and service constantly before the people. Increasing work with the school children, such as the instruction courses in the use of the library, story hours, Vacation Reading Clubs, deposit libraries reaching children in outlying districts, and the various contests stimulate the library's work with the best books, have all brought invaluable publicity and have emphasized the library's service in many homes it would not otherwise have reached. Exhibits both in and outside the library, book talks, reading lists and the weekly column of book notes in the "Courier-Gazette" are other valuable agencies which have kept the library before the people.

A report would be incomplete without making some mention of our financial conditions. As always the question of adequate financial support with which to carry on our work is a serious one. The chart displayed in the library showing the comparative growth in 1925 clearly demonstrates how largely the usefulness of the library depends upon its financial support. Lack of adequate funds for books not only cause a decreased use of the library for that year but hinders its work for years to come, for the majority of books are printed but once and unless one purchases them at the time of publication they can be secured later only at a premium. This is usually impossible in a small library so the other alternative must be accepted, that of bearing the handicap of an inadequate background collection.

This year our appropriation from the city was necessarily reduced, so that no money from this source was available for books. Only by practicing the strictest economy, shortening library hours during the summer, going without the usual substitutes during staff vacations, supplying only the most imperative needs in equipment, supplies and upkeep of the building, have we been able to keep within our appropriation. That we have at the same time been able to record a year of progress is due to the fact that unusual funds were available for books. None of these funds will be available next year.

It is imperative therefore, that if, with the increased demand for books and the added wear which this demand involves, we are to maintain our present standard of service, added funds must be available, either by city appropriation (which is but 67 per cent of the amount considered reasonable for maintaining a first class library in a city of this size) or by some other means, such as special money raising events or an endowment fund.

In closing I wish to commend to you the faithful service of our staff, Miss Rogers, Mrs. McRae and Miss Marshall, children's librarians, upon whose cheerful co-operation and interest the success of the library is largely dependent, and of Chester Stewart who continues his satisfactory work as janitor.

The difference between success and failure is only ten cents. The business man who takes in a dollar and spends only 95 cents is on the road to financial independence; but the fellow who spends $1.05 when he's got only a dollar in the bank is headed for the rocks.

THE STORER FARM

Correspondent Pays a Visit To One of the Old-Time Establishments.

One day last winter I walked up over Clarry Hill, crossing fields and pastures down over the western slope of the hill to the John Jameson farm. At that home, so neat and homelike, I enjoyed a chat with two of my former pupils. Home atmosphere with good people always holds one with charm, but slanting shadows warned me to take my leave for another call before going back home.

I was bent to the Guilford Storor place. I left the main highway and passed over a road through fields, until I came to a gate—just an ordinary, homely pasture gate, but it was not a shabby nor a sagging one.

Nearing the Storor buildings I came to a coal pit yard. These coal pits so frequent 40 years ago in Knox County are now very uncommon. Some old stories linger in my memory, coal pits back in my grandparents' days, bearing experiences of fun, danger and work in the care of them, so I like to run across them now. In this coal pit yard is a small building where the watchman sleeps with one eye open to watch drafts and prevent too rapid burning. The Storor buildings are situated on a sunny knoll at the foot of the western side of Clarry Hill. In full view is the Storor pond, nestled among high-pitched hills of trees, making a beautiful scene.

I was cordially greeted and we talked of the three little girls who used to come to my school long ago, now in established homes of their own in Massachusetts. I was ushered into an old house rejuvenated. The correct use of color together with well-balanced arrangement of furniture suggested wonderful good taste and skill. I tried hard to believe I had actually passed through that gate to enter a home like this.

A very old table, shining with modern treatment, in the sitting room, Mrs. Storor thinks may have been used in the log cabin of the pioneers on that farm. On the weathered surface of the original kitchen are wide timbers extending from floor to ceiling, calling for the two decorated panel mirrors that fit so completely. The fireplaces are closed, but the original door latches and old finish are intact.

A later trip to this home in summer time took me through green fields and pastures. When I stood on the bridge that spans the brook near the house, I enjoyed the blooming heaths that we usually find only on or near bogs. The white sheep and lambs were near by and the swallows were dipping and diving here and there with merry twittering. I found Mrs. Storor might boast of three dining rooms, keeping the best one fresh and clean by using another room in the ell, with yet another carefully screened for her third. In the first room a china closet shows a full set of Limoges china, old glass and the daughter's lovely set of Nippon china, these sets supplemented by many nice odd pieces.

Beautiful handwork in lace and linen impart artistic and delicate touches of refinement. Stepping from this room we entered the backyard flower garden—for the Storors would have to be in style when backyard gardens are so much in vogue. And such gardens! Beds of flowers right in bright colors and softened by delicate hues, with the vegetable garden close by.

COULD NOT PUT ON HER SHOES

Mrs. Daugherty Was so Weak

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors to enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

NORTH HOPE

The first meeting of the winter series of the Hilltop Club met Saturday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bennett and it proved to be a very enjoyable affair. Mr. Bennett's family consists beside himself and wife—of twelve hale and hearty children nine of whom are still at home, the Misses Marilla and Gertrude have employment in Camden and Doris is now Mrs. Earl Dority and lives in Camden. The Bennetts have three children which they are boarding and all of the children did their share towards the evening's entertainment. Even baby Hazel could sing and do acrobatic stunts. The usual hilltop supper was served about 6 o'clock and the two long tables laden with decorated cakes and other noted Hilltop cookery was a pleasant sight to the hungry crowd, some of whom would vow that they had after the supper was served a fine program of songs, recitations, jokes, etc., interspersed by violins and radio selections was much enjoyed. One of the visitors, Earl Dority, contributed a cornet solo which with the loan of his radio was much appreciated. Space does not permit mentioning each number, but special mention should be given to the fancy dancing of two little girls, The Hilltops two journals "The Flipflop" and "The Clarion" were read by their editors, G. A. Hall and E. Donald Perry and were full of peppy news and interesting comments. Mr. Hall paid a fine tribute of love and esteem to our late sister and neighbor Mrs. Flora Ludwig. Also there were words of sympathy spoken for the absence of another member, Mrs. J. D. Pease who is ill at Knox Hospital. Miss Berne Dority of Cushing was a guest of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dority of Camden were also guests. Mrs. Dority (Doris Bennett) as daughter of the house has a claim to membership in this now famous band of friendly neighbors. After the program was over headed by Allie Wellman with his violin the young members—some of the older ones—repaired to the long shed and kitchen and had a fine time dancing old time dances. The old "jig tunes" even set A. L. and Loren to dancing a clog. There were 42 present and the wee small hours were striking when the good wishes and farewells were floating on the moonlit air.

Mrs. Olive Pease is at the home of her son, J. D. Pease. Mrs. J. D. Pease is ill at Knox Hospital.

Mrs. U. G. Pease spent several days last week at the home of her son Samuel in Camden.

LIVING WITH ONESELF
"I have to live with myself, and so I want to be fit for myself to know; I want to be able, as the days go by, always to look myself straight in the eye. I don't want to stand with the setting sun—And hate myself for the things I've done. I don't want to keep on a closet shelf A lot of secrets about myself, And feel myself, as I come and go, Into thinking nobody else will know The kind of man I really am. I don't want to dress myself up in sham!"

NINETY AND LIVING

Freeman W. Smith

Freeman W. Smith of Highwood, N. J., is the only living charter member of Eastern Frontier Lodge of Masons, F. & A. M., of Fort Fairfield. Mr. Smith, who is past 90 years of age joined the order in Hope, in 1857. In a recent letter Mr. Smith says:

"I first went to Fort Fairfield in the spring of 1860; at that time money was very scarce. The prevailing currency was oats, buckwheat and cedar shingles. In 1861 I was elected on the school board. An old farmer in an outlying district made a motion in town meeting that the incoming female school teachers receive their pay in buckwheat and oats. I opposed the motion and it did not prevail."

It was in 1862 that the Masons conceived the idea of forming a lodge. As Mr. Smith was the only person familiar with the work of conferring degrees they met quite often to practice. As the Civil War had broken out all those contemplating joining the army took the degrees before enlisting. Mr. Smith was the first master. For a good many years he contributed to the puzzle department of the Maine Farmers' Almanac, but on account of failing eyesight stopped contributing. The editor thought he was dead and in this year's almanac his name appears in the list of those who are dead.

Mr. Smith was a long-time resident of Rockland and a valued contributor to The Courier-Gazette, which he still favors occasionally.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Taken nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

RECORD MEMBERSHIP

Is Expected As Result of Farm Bureau Campaign For 1927.

Records are being shattered all along the lines in the 1927 farm bureau membership campaign, according to the reports which have come to A. L. Deering, secretary of the Maine State Farm Bureau Federation. There are a greater number of farm bureau members in Maine at this time than ever before when county farm bureau annual meetings were closed. Indications, therefore, point to a record membership when the final reports are in.

That the farm bureaus are popular with the people and in a healthy condition is indicated by the percentage of 1926 members renewing for next year. Three counties have already secured 75% or more renewals this figure in 1925 and but one in 1924. Penobscot stands first in this respect having 84% renewals, Piscataquis County, second with 76% and Franklin third with 75%.

The present membership of the farm bureau of the State is 91% of the total for 1926. Again Penobscot leads having secured 189% of its 1926 membership followed by Kennebec with 162% and Piscataquis and Oxford third, with 93% closely followed by Franklin with 97%, Washington with 94% and Cumberland with 92%.

All of the farm bureaus in the State except one show an increase in membership for this year over last year at this time. Following is the standing of membership: Kennebec, 1878; Hancock, 1114; Waldo, 952; York, 925; Arrostook, 920; Cumberland, 907; Washington, 795; Penobscot, 787; Franklin, 764; Piscataquis, 757; Somerset, 704; Knox-Lincoln, 606; Oxford and Twin with 596 each. The relative standing of these farm bureaus will no doubt change as additional campaign reports are submitted.

Penobscot County was winner of the silver shield as first prize in the 1927 membership contest conducted by the State Farm Bureau Federation. The scoring of this contest is based largely on membership renewals and on good team work by community committees. Washington County was second and will receive $30 and Hancock County third for a prize of $20.

COLLECTING MONUMENTS

Boys collect stamps, birds' eggs and bugs, girls collect, they say valentines and the photograph of the latest Adonis, and we all collect coins, but I have a friend who collects monuments, at least that is how he expresses his mania for taking snapshots all over the world of Public monuments. In Berlin he was kept busier than almost anywhere else in Europe. Here he added to his collection the statue of the Emperor William I, the splendid Monument to the "Grosse Kurfurst," the fine bronze statue of King Frederick William III in the Lustgarten, the eight marble groups on the Schloss Brucke, the six statues of Frederick the Great's generals in the Wilhelmplatz, the Schiller monument before the Schauspielhaus, the Luther monument near the Marien Kirche, the Sieges Saule in the Koenigsplatz, the statues to Moltke, Bismarck, Goethe, Lessing, Wagner, Queen Louise and the thirty-two monuments to the Brandenburg and Prussian sovereigns along the Seiges Alley. Berlin has been called the city of museums. I think it deserves to be called the City of Monuments.

SONG OF THE WINTER WIND
[For The Courier-Gazette]
Out of the forest I come,
Where the trees crack under the strain;
Laden with frozen snow,
Blizzard or driving rain;
Exulting in terrible power,
As I loom on your window pane—
Out of the forest I come,
Where the trees crack under the strain.

ENDORSES KNOX MEMORIAL PURE TEA GUARANTEED

State Regent Urges D. A. R. Chapters To Lend Their Aid.

Mrs. Blaine S. Viles of Augusta, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, makes public the following letter from Mrs. Herbert M. Lord, President of the Knox Memorial Association:
"Many thanks for your congratulatory letter concerning the Knox Memorial. Mr. Curtis was indeed liberal, and I am in receipt of acknowledgment from the Thomaston National Bank that his check for $50,000 has been received and deposited to the credit of the Knox Memorial Association. Charles R. Flint, a native of Thomaston, well known internationally as an industrial organizer, has assumed charge of the campaign to raise the balance of the fund required to build and endow the Memorial at a cost of $250,000. He does this as a labor of love. His task will not be an easy one, but I know he will spare no effort to accomplish it. He is most enthusiastic and has already done a great deal toward attracting attention to Washington's Chief of Artillery, his wisest advisor in time of conflict, and his first Secretary of War and Navy. If we have done nothing more, that in itself in these times of forgetfulness of the Fathers of the Republic would repay for the effort made. The vision of restored Montpelier, with its wealth of relics of Knox and his life, should be transformed into a patriotic reality. It would be second only to Mount Vernon as a Revolutionary Memorial."
Mrs. Viles as State Regent urges all chapters to donate liberally toward this building, which will prove of great value to Maine in a material way as well as being a patriotic asset. It will be recalled that the movement was started in the General Knox Chapter, Thomaston, and later the Knox Memorial Association was formed. It is sponsored by the National Society and by leaders all over the country.

GREATEST NEED, CLOTHING Penobscot Bay Bethel Mission Makes Its Yearly Appeal.

The Penobscot Bay Bethel Mission is making its yearly appeal for clothing for boys and girls and hopes for a generous response from those whose hearts open to aid needy families in Penobscot Bay districts. This mission was incorporated in 1913 and licensed by the State Board of Charities and Corrections. In these many years of service under a missionary pastor and assistant, the sick have been ministered to, a library has been maintained from which 2305 carefully selected books were taken last year, preaching services have been held, and Sunday schools established on islands and in rural villages. The greatest need is for warm clothing, both new and used, for boys and girls under 14 years and this is being asked for just now.

A well-equipped school of printing has been established at Montreal, and 40 apprentices have enrolled in the free courses. This is the first trade school of its kind in the Province of Quebec.

SUNLIGHT AND HEALTH

A New Discovery of An Old Power Utilized in Modern Health Work.

The treatment of disease with sunlight, known today as heliotherapy, is as old as the science of medicine, but the scientific use of sunlight for certain forms of tuberculosis and for rickets is as new as the 20th century. If we look into historical medical literature we find, now and then, references to sun baths for the sick, but we find almost no mention of prevention of disease with sunlight. On the island of Cos in about the year 400 B. C. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, advised sun baths and built a temple to Aesculapius, the god of medicine, to serve as a solarium for his patients. From the time of Hippocrates until the beginning of the Dark Ages, Greek and Roman physicians continued to recommend sun baths for the cure of disease. In modern times heliotherapy has been practiced more or less in France since the end of the eighteenth century. The first specific use of sunlight for the treatment of tuberculosis was made by the physicians of Lyons about 1840, but it was not put on a sound scientific basis until 1903 when Rollier opened his clinic in Switzerland. Today many hundreds of children and adults with bone and gland tuberculosis go to Switzerland to be treated with sun baths. After many years of experience Rollier has established a system of graduated sun baths which have as their ultimate goal thorough pigmentation of the skin of the whole body and not sunburn. The altitude in Switzerland insures a coolness of the air as well as great intensity of sunlight. The heat of the sun is useful in heliotherapy only in the winter and must be avoided at midday in summer even in the mountains. The best heliotherapy consists of light baths and not of heat baths, and may be practiced at any altitude or in any place where the sunlight is clear. This method of treating tuberculosis became so successful in Rollier's clinic that it has been initiated in all parts of Europe and this country. Switzerland is no longer the only place where tuberculosis children may be seen playing naked in the sun or lying on outdoor sun porches. In many parts of this country, whether at the seashore or in the mountains, just such scenes are common today.

A "BURDS' NEST"

Quaint Summer Home At Northport Attracts Much Attention.

Everybody who rides between Rockland and Belfast casts an interested eye on the little cottage at Little River, completely surrounded and almost hidden by a cedar hedge. A Belfast correspondent has this to say about it:

"Standing on the hillside at Little River, just over on the Northport side, where the river divides that town from Belfast, is a quaint old summer cottage, known as Burd's Nest, and always an object of curiosity to the passerby on the Atlantic Highway. It is almost concealed by a high cedar hedge which although said to be nearly 75 years old, possibly older, has been so carefully clipped and tended all these years that from one year to another, it is unchanged. It never varies in height, in its beautiful smooth contour, and peeping above it is the attic window in the gable of the little house, the roof and a wee chimney. It is a darling little house, and its name is very appropriate, for it is the home in summer of the Burds, Mrs. Edward D. Burd of West Medford, Mass., a real nest to which members of the family come in the spring with the other migratory birds and from which they go with the Southern flight in the fall or early winter.

"The cedar hedge surrounds the house on three sides, hiding all but the roof from the Atlantic Highway with its continuous procession in summer of automobiles. On the north and south also it is sheltered from the wind and has complete privacy, but the eastern exposure looks off to sea over the blue waters of Penobscot Bay, with the entrance to the river, and a glimpse of the little villages of Searsport and Stockton Springs in the distance. Keeping watch in summer and winter, twinkling and blinking and saying solemnly 'All's well, all's well,' is the constantly burning light on the end of Steel's ledge, guarding the entrance to Belfast harbor.

"Burd's Nest is really a bird's nest, and tourists often stop to admire and kodak it as they bowl along the Atlantic Highway. It has been there for more than three-quarters of a century, long before the Atlantic Highway was dreamed of, and in the days when the ox-cart and the old gray mare were the only means of transportation. Although it has had its back to the highway all these years, from its little attic window it has kept tabs on Time's progress but has itself remained unchanged."

Agent Brasier of the Express Company Talks of Holiday Shipments.

"A shipment started right is half way there" remarked Rodney Brazier agent of the American Railway Express Co., yesterday in discussing the coming holiday traffic.

Mr. Brazier laid stress upon the importance of early shipping, as well as early shopping.

"In preparing any shipments, consideration should be given to the nature of the goods, the distance they are to travel and the amount of handling they must necessarily receive. The nature of the gift and the weight will determine whether it can safely be transported with paper wrapping only.

"Fragile articles, like glass and crockery, need the protection of a box or other outside container in addition to ample and suitable cushioning material. If several are forwarded in the same package, each should be separately wrapped and then perhaps tied together. Play inside a package may cause damage to the contents. Good strong paper and twine liberally used will help.

"The importance of complete and accurate addressing is obvious. Instead of writing with lead pencil or using tags, the marks should be applied directly on the surface of the package by waterproof crayon, ink or stencil or by the use of special holiday labels obtainable on request at the express office. The name and address of the sender might well be enclosed in the package, in addition to being shown on the outside.

"Every address should include the name of the receiver, full street and number, city or town, state and in the case of small towns, the name of the county. This will prevent delays in delivery, often caused by incomplete addresses.

"Legible writing in preparing an address on a Christmas shipment and the care in abbreviating the name of the State will aid in prompt handling during the busy season, when every delay may cause disappointment, particularly if it results in delivery after Christmas.

"The full name and address of the sender, preceded by the word, from, should be marked less conspicuously on the upper left hand corner of the package."

PINEAPPLE LAYER CAKE

An inexpensive but delicious and festive looking dessert, is pineapple layer cake. Make it with ordinary cake layers, or, if you choose, with sponge cake layers. Only a half pint of cream is necessary since the crushed pineapple is moist. Spread the pineapple and a little cream between the lower layers and save most of the cream to spread over the top with the pineapple. One can of pineapple will do for the ordinary size cake.

MAKE DIZZY RECORDS
Hill, Lockhart and Hartz Make World Marks With Champions.

Four world speed records for 91 cubic inch engines fell before the onslaughts of Bennett Hill, Frank Lockhart and Harry Hartz, the 1926 racing champion, in furious battles for supremacy in the Armistice Day races at Charlotte, N. C. Each car establishing the new records was powered with Champion spark plugs, as usual, it is announced by the Champion Spark Plug Co.

Hill eclipsed Earl Cooper's five-mile world mark of 127.659 miles an hour by negotiating the distance at 130.369. The colorful Bennie also bettered his own 10-mile record of 129.496, made at Salem, N. H., by elevating it to 131.32. Even with those records under his belt, Hill was unable to capture the 25-mile race in which they were made. Lockhart won it at 122.2 miles an hour, in what spectators said was one of the most spectacular finish fights, with Hill ever seen on an American speedway.

Leon Duray held the former world mark at 130.39. Hartz set the new 50-mile record by winning that race at a speed of 129.34 miles an hour. Peter de Puco's old figure was 128.24, also made at Salem. The heavy-footed Lockhart had the 100-mile finale well within his grasp until he broke a connecting rod past the halfway post. Duray, a mile and a quarter back, stepped into the lead and was never headed, romping home easily at the comparatively slow speed of 122.8. Every car to gain a winning place in each of the four events was powered with Champions.

The races brought their list of victories up to 56 in less than four years, according to the company, adv.
